

Abstract

The subject invention provides novel methods and materials for treating diabetic 5 retinopathy. One embodiment of the subject invention involves the co-administration of a somatostatin, or analogue thereof, and a thyroid-related substance such as thyroxine. Somatostatin or thyroid-related substance can be administered in combination, or separately through the same or different modes of administration.

10

15

20